Returning Students

Welcome back!

I hope you have had a terrific summer! I look forward to continue serving you and/or your kids' music lesson needs. There are some changes that have taken place over the course of the summer, and I thought I would fill you in.

The Introduction of Red Flame

I used to offer music lessons independently, but I have decided to offer this service under the umbrella of my business, Red Flame. Red Flame has been in existence for over 6 years, and began as a home-based studio production facility for artists and musicians. However, I have started offering several new creative services in addition to recording and production (including music lessons).

What does this mean for me?

Fortunately, very little has actually changed with regards to music lessons. I will still be coming to your home to teach you (or your kids) music lessons. Cheques can still be made out to "David Andrew Wiebe" or, if you prefer, "Red Flame". Because I am currently the sole proprietor of the business, it doesn't make any difference for tax purposes.

Why Red Flame?

Red Flame will be working in cooperation with other teachers, musicians, and clinicians to offer a range of new services including educational workshops. This fall, for example, we will be offering an "Introduction to Recording Workshop". If you have not received any information regarding this workshop, make sure to let me know and I will provide you with more information.

Additionally, I will be answering frequently asked questions and giving book recommendations on the Red Flame blog, at www.RedFlameRecords.com.

The bottom line is that I believe I will be better able to serve you through the use of the website, blog posts, podcasts, workshops, and a variety of other offerings.

Books

Speaking of which, I now have a supplier who offers me books at discount rates (both new and used). If you are thinking of purchasing a book or any other reference material for music lessons, please let me know. I will have a list of books that I can recommend based on skill level, interest, and objective. I might even be able to save you a little money!
